HARDY PERENNIAL VINES

Name	Light Preference	Description
Evergreen Twining:
Confederate jasmine Trachelospermum jasminoides	Full sun to part shade	Large, fast-growing vine for larger structures. Masses of creamy white, very fragrant flowers in May. May be damaged by temperatures in the mid- to lower teens.
Yellow jessamine Gelsemium sempervirens	Full sun to part shade	Moderate-growing native vine. Good for arches and trellises. Bright yellow, fragrant flowers in late winter and spring. Native.
Coral honeysuckle Lonicera sempervirens	Full sun to part sun	Generally well-behaved native vine that is good for fences, arches and trellises. Tubular coral-red flowers with yellow faces that are highly attractive to hummingbirds but not fragrant. Attractive bluish-green foliage with silver undersides. Native.
Akebia Akebia quinata	Full sun to part sun	Evergreen vine with dusky, purple fragrant flowers in spring. The five-part leaves are attractive. Vigorous grower for fences, arbors and arches.
